DPA DEFENDER MISSION STATEMENT

Provide each client with high quality services through an effective delivery system, which ensures a defender staff dedicated to the interests of their clients and the improvement of the criminal justice system.

Summary of Department of Public Advocacy Case Measurement Purpose

The Department of Public Advocacy Annual Caseload Report is the primary reference document to measure the workload of Kentucky's public defenders. The agency has captured case data for more than two decades. The tools and depth of information gathered have evolved during this time period. The annual report, though, still serves the same basic purpose. It is an internal document for the purposes of management decisions and an external document as an open record of the work of the agency.

The Department is committed to information collection and publication for several purposes:

- To provide accountability to the state of Kentucky for Department of Public Advocacy work
- To continue participation in the Kentucky Unified Criminal Justice Information System (UCJIS)
- To improve the Kentucky criminal justice system through data collection as a way to study system effectiveness

The Department of Public Advocacy is also committed to data integrity and consistency. The agency continually examines its data entry processes and data entry definitions to ensure reliability of the published report. In 2005, the Public Advocate convened the Caseload Integrity Committee solely for the purpose of examining the reliability of agency information collection. This group met several times during FY 2005. The Committee created and implemented a case definition refresher course for both directing attorneys and administrative staff. The committee's work will extend into FY 2006 to implement several other programs for data integrity.

Executive Summary:

FY 2005 sees DPA total caseload on the rise for the 5th Consecutive Year

The Department of Public Advocacy (DPA) experienced total caseload growth for the 5th consecutive year in FY 2005. DPA is mandated under KRS Chapter 31 to administer the statewide public defender system. The Department is appointed to represent individuals who have demonstrated their indigency status to the satisfaction of trial and appellate judges. Indigency is determined by judges utilizing factors outlined in KRS 31.120. DPA caseloads are affected by criminal justice trends, legislative enactments, and economic conditions. DPA is responsible for all clients who are appointed by a judge. As a result, DPA must continually adjust its defined resource pool to meet an undefined and growing need.

The following outlines some of the key trends in the Department of Public Advocacy in FY 2005:

- Overall cases handled by DPA rose to 134,929, up from 131,094 in FY 2004. This represents a 2.6% increase in the total number of cases handled by the agency from the previous year. It continues the trend that has prevailed since FY 2000.

- The Trial Division caseload per attorney dropped only slightly to 483.7 in FY 2005 from 489.4 in FY 2004. The drop is attributable largely to the addition of nine (9) staff attorneys in FY 2005 as authorized by the Kentucky Legislature to help relieve a burgeoning workload.

- The Post Trial Division opened 2,142 cases in FY 2005, up from 1,935 in FY 2004. This represents a 10.7% increase in the number of cases handled by the Post Trial Division of DPA.

- The FY 2005 Department of Public Advocacy cost-per-case was $233.44. The funding per capita was $7.82.

Overview of Expenditures

FY 2005

(July 1, 2004 - June 30, 2005)

Overview of Expenditures and Cost Per Case

The Department of Public Advocacy (DPA) is an independent state agency within the Kentucky Cabinet for Justice and Public Safety. DPA has a unique position in the Cabinet because of the Department's role within the criminal justice system. In order to protect its independence, the Department of Public Advocacy operates under a Memorandum of Agreement with its Cabinet (see also KRS 31.010). This MOA allows DPA professional independence and attaches DPA to the Cabinet for administrative purposes only.

The Department of Public Advocacy is funded primarily by Kentucky General Funds. In FY 2005, the legislature allocated DPA $30,888,893 in general funds. In addition to general funds, the Kentucky DPA derives revenue from three other sources. By statute, the Department of Public Advocacy receives $62.50 for each DUI conviction, 3.5% of court costs, and Partial Fees. (Partial Fees refer to costs assigned to indigent defendants represented by DPA when it is determined that the client can pay a minimal fee while still not being able to afford a private attorney.) Because of the unpredictability of revenue funds, the funding and expenditures for the Department of Public Advocacy does not always equal a zero balance at the end of a given fiscal year. FY 2005 was no exception to this phenomenon.

The Department of Public Advocacy also has a unique relationship with several offices. Jefferson County, Fayette County, and Boyd County operate independent non-profit entities as the public defender service for those counties. The Kentucky Department of Public Advocacy supplements their budgets with two sources of funding. Each of these offices have contracts with the Department of Public Advocacy where DPA sends the office an allocated portion of DPA general funds on an annual basis. In addition to the general funds, DPA serves as the administrative agent to recover and distribute partial fees earned by these offices. Both of these areas show as expenditures in the DPA annual budget.

The following section on FY 2005 Department of Public Advocacy concerns selected expenditures from the DPA budget. As a state agency, the Department of Public Advocacy annual financial statement is included and reviewed by the Consolidated Annual Financial Report (CAFA).

FY 2005 Conflict Case Costs for DPA Trial Division

The Trial Division typically spends a significant amount of money on conflict cases. Conflict representation occurs when there are simultaneous defendants out of a specific incident. A single DPA office can only represent one of that set of defendants because of attorney ethical rules unless there is a waiver of the conflict. The other indigent clients from that same incident must either be represented by other DPA offices or by outside counsel. DPA has seen the number of conflict cases rise in recent years in areas such as the East where there are large drug "sweeps". In FY 2005, the East Region spent over $349.07 per conflict case as opposed to the agency average of $272 per case.

Caseload Data

FY 2005

(July 1, 2004 - June 30, 2005)

Overview of FY 2005 Trial Case Numbers

The case numbers for the Trial Division rose for the 5th straight year in FY 2005. The Trial Division handled 132,787 cases in FY 2005. This is an increase of 2.9% over FY 2004. The Trial Division also operated 29 field offices for standard trial work, one (1) field office for Capital work and two (2) counties served entirely by contract attorneys. The Trial Division operated full-time offices in 118 of Kentucky's 120 counties. In FY 2006, the remaining two (2) contract counties will move into a full-time field office located in Glasgow. This addition will realize the stated DPA goal of indigent defense by full-time attorneys throughout the state of Kentucky. A number of studies have demonstrated that full-time defense offices provide better service and higher quality legal service than where indigent defense is provided by part-time contractors.

The Trial Division continued its emphasis on consistent case data entry throughout FY 2005. The Public Advocate created a Case Integrity Committee to identify and resolve any case entry inconsistencies. As with any large scale data entry system, there must be constant vigilance and checks to ensure that all geographic areas are consistent and accurate in case entry. The Case Integrity Committee met during the first three months of calendar 2005. Additionally, the committee created and implemented a case definition refresher course for directing attorneys and support staff in April 2005. Following the recommendation of the committee, DPA will continue its emphasis on training and enforcement of the DPA case definition throughout FY 2006.

The DPA case definition has been in existence for more than 10 years. The general definition of a case is as follows: "a case consists of a single accused, having either under the same or different case number(s), one or more charges, allegations, or proceedings arising out of one event or a group of related contemporaneous events." In most scenarios, a case counted by DPA equates on a one-to-one basis with a case number provided by the Administrative Office of the Courts. In certain situations such as PFOs, Probation Revocation Hearings and other events in addition to the core case, DPA will use an AOC case number more than once. These re-used numbers amount to less than 12% of the DPA total trial caseload in FY 2005. Additionally, there are situations where DPA will count multiple AOC numbers as a single DPA case. In situations such as bad checks where there may be multiple AOC numbers arising out of the contemporaneous event, DPA staff are instructed to only count the multiple AOC numbers as a single DPA case based on the event. There are no statistics to give a percentage of the caseload for this latter phenomenon.

Statement of Definitions: Trial Cases and Case Counting Methods

Total cases listed for a branch, division, or DPA as a whole are only those cases that were opened during the fiscal year being reported. The totals do not include the numerous, ongoing cases handled by DPA that were opened in previous fiscal years. This exclusion is particularly important in capital cases and in all post trial cases, which typically remain open for several years and require that continuing new work be done on those cases.

DPA has extensive protocols for the application of case definitions and case counting methods that take into account the unique differences among circuit and district court cases, juvenile and adult cases, etc. These definitions were developed in concert with staff input, KRS requirements, and commonly accepted statistical methodology. Consistency of application is insured through the use of the agency's Case Tracking System (CTS), an in-house database.

Throughout this document, the following definitions and methods of case counting are used consistently.

Trial Division Cases

A case consists of a single accused, having either under the same or different case number(s), one or more charges, allegations, or proceedings arising out of one event or a group of related contemporaneous events. These charges must be brought contemporaneously against the defendant, stemming from the same course of conduct, and involving proof of the same facts. Some cases assigned to individual attorneys are conducted, either wholly or in part, outside the confines of state courts (e.g., parole revocation hearings, KRS 31.110 line-ups, interrogations, other pre-charge events, witness representations); however, to be counted as a "case" for Trial Division statistical purposes, a formal appointment by a court with appropriate jurisdiction is required. An individual attorney's actions do not constitute a "case" (for agency statistical purposes) if the activity is brief, strictly routine (e.g., standing in for arraignment purposes at a regularly scheduled motion hour, responding to inmate correspondence), and performed as a courtesy to the court.

In addition to adhering to the general agency definition of a "case," to be counted as a capital eligible case, an accused must be charged with at least one count of kidnapping or murder, with a qualifying KRS aggravator identified. The number of attorneys assigned to the case has no bearing on the agency's counting of capital cases, and, because cases must be entered and categorized upon assignment, the agency does not require prior receipt of notice from the Commonwealth's Attorney that the death penalty will be sought.

1. The Capital Trial Branch is included to recognize the services of its attorneys and staff, but its cases are excluded from "avg. cases/atty" comparison analysis due to their length and complexity.

NOTE: The above numbers do not include contract cases for Barren and Metcalf which are listed on a later chart breakdown by county.

FY 2005

(July 1, 2004 - June 30, 2005)

Post Trial Division Case Notes from FY 2005

The Post Trial Division handled 2,141 cases in FY 2005. This represented a 10.7% increase over FY 2004. The Post Trial Division is responsible for fulfilling DPA Chapter 31 obligations for all qualifying adults convicted of a felony offense and for all children and youth on post judgment review of status, public and youthful offender cases. There are three branches within the division—Appeals, Juvenile Post Disposition and Post Conviction. The Appeals Branch handles direct appeals from felony convictions and final judgments. These appeals are taken to the Kentucky Court of Appeals, the Kentucky Supreme Court and, where appropriate, into federal court and the U.S. Supreme Court for appellate review. Indigency determinations and the decision to appoint counsel are determined by the trial court and reviewed by the appellate courts. The Juvenile Post Disposition Branch represents children and youth who were found at the trial court level to be status, public or youthful offenders. The Post Conviction Branch represents adult felons on their Post Conviction cases. As there are over 21,000 incarcerated persons in Kentucky prisons and only 14 attorneys in the Post Conviction Branch, the agency is not able to provide counsel to all persons in prison in Kentucky on felony convictions in Post Conviction matters. 2004-5 placed significant demands on the division as two capital cases required extensive litigation

The Post Conviction Branch includes a section devoted to the Kentucky Innocence Project. With its Kentucky Innocence Project (KIP), DPA partners with the Commonwealth's law and other professional schools to provide representation to those factually innocent prisoners who have strong colorable claims and evidence that can be presented in a court of law to win relief. Each year, KIP receives over 200 inquiries for representation. In FY 2005, KIP only accepted 16 cases for further investigation. Law, social work and criminal justice students are trained through the year by KIP staff and college faculty. KIP and the professional schools work together to investigate these cases, surfacing new evidence and preparing legal claims to win relief for deserving clients.

Additionally, the division stretched its limited resources to the greatest degree possible to provide some assistance to the 21,000 prisoners incarcerated in Kentucky's jails and prisons.

In general, the Post Trial Division provides representation in a very diverse set of legal circumstances. The Division carried a 10% higher caseload in FY 2005 with only a 2% increase in funding.

Statement of Definitions: Post Trial Cases and Case Counting Methods

Total cases listed for a branch, division, or DPA as a whole are only those cases that were opened during the fiscal year being reported. The totals do not include the numerous, ongoing cases handled by DPA that were opened in previous fiscal years. This exclusion is particularly important in capital cases and in all post trial cases, which typically remain open for several years and require that continuing new work be done on those cases.

DPA has extensive protocols for the application of case definitions and case counting methods that take into account the unique differences among circuit and district court cases, juvenile and adult cases, etc. These definitions were developed in concert with staff input, KRS requirements, and commonly accepted statistical methodology. Consistency of application is insured through the use of the agency's Case Tracking System (CTS), an in-house database.

Throughout this document, the following definitions and methods of case counting are used consistently.

Post Trial Division Cases

The Post Trial Division has three branches, each of which has a different mission and function. The division has developed a common definition for a case. As with the Trial Division all cases are only counted during the year that the case is opened and multiple counts tried together are counted as a single case for appellate or post conviction purposes. Most post trial cases remain open and require work over several years. All of the cases handled by the Appeals Branch and Post Conviction Branch are felony cases involving prison sentences of from one year to life in prison without opportunity of parole, to the death penalty. The records on appellate and post conviction cases can vary from a one video tape record to a seventy video tape record. A very few courts still use written transcripts. Kentucky is unique in the nation in its reliance upon a video record, the review of which is much more time consuming for the lawyer for appellant who must review the entire pretrial and trial record to prepare an appeal or post conviction action, without opportunity to fast forward or speed read through a record. Across the division, a case is assigned and counted as a case at the following points in the process:

- a. When a direct appeal is received and the case is assigned to counsel to brief.
- b. When a post conviction appeal is received and the case is assigned to counsel to brief. These include appeals from RCR 11.42 denials, CR 60.02 denials, state habeas denials, conditional guilty pleas, probation revocations, denials of requests to withdraw guilty pleas, jail credit denials, sentence reduction denials, and Lewis hearing appeals.
- c. When a petition for habeas corpus is filed in the federal U.S. District Court.

- d. When a final (versus proof) brief is filed on a habeas case in the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.
- e. When a petition for writ of certiorari is granted and briefing is ordered.
- f. When a motion for discretionary review is granted and briefing is ordered.
- g. Original actions filed and extraordinary writs filed in a circuit court, court of appeals, supreme court, or federal court.
- h. Fact, duration or condition of confinement cases pursued on behalf of clients under eighteen years of age who are in the juvenile system. These include inter alia motions to terminate commitment, cases pursued as Section 1983 litigation, ARC hearings, YO sentencing hearings where JPDB lawyers do not enter the case until the sentencing stage as the attorneys for the child in circuit court, supervised placement revocation hearings.
- i. state habeas actions filed in circuit courts
- j. RCR 11.42 pleadings filed in circuit courts and juvenile courts
- k. CR 60.02 pleadings filed in circuit courts and juvenile courts
- l. Section 1983 litigation
- m. Clemency petitions on behalf of capital and non-capital clients
- n. Motions filed in post conviction to correct the sentence
- o. Motions filed to reopen cases pursuant to claims of factual innocence
- p. Other appellate and post conviction actions may be filed and if separate court cases will be counted in the year such litigation is filed.

Post Conviction Branch Client Intake

Each year, the Post Conviction Branch spends time at correctional facilities in Kentucky interviewing inmates with potential legal complaints. These interviews take significant time to hear and prepare a response to the client. DPA is able to accept less than 10% of these incarcerated persons as clients. Only the accepted clients are counted as cases in the DPA Post Trial case count.
